INJURED MAN IS SOUGHT BY POLICE AFTER A HOLD-UP

Pair Crashed in Car at Fallsington Tunnel On the Lincoln Highway

ONE IS IN THE HOSPITAL

Police Say He Admits That
He and Friend Robbed
Gas Station

FALLSINGTON, Aug. 9.—A man believed to be one of the pair which held-up and robbed the "Yankee Clipper" lunch wagon at Lincoln Point yesterday, is in a Trenton hospital while the other one is believed to have been injured. For a time he was hiding in the deep brush near the West Morrisville railroad yards.

The two men first held-up and robbed the Atlantic gasoline station at 510 Brunswick avenue, Trenton, N. J., and stole $10 from William L. Hammond, the attendant.

The two men said by police to have been Joseph Marion, former Tren-tonian, and John J. Scheirer, 20, of near Flemington, N. J., then are thought to have made their escape over the Delaware river bridge and staged their second hold-up at the "Yankee Clipper." Here they took $31 from Charles Eulisse, the night man, at the point of a revolver.

During the hold-up Frank Kirby, of Fallsington, an attendant at a nearby gasoline station entered the wagon and was ordered to throw up his hands. Kirby brushed the gun aside and the pair fled to their car.

Driving toward Philadelphia, Scheir-er lost control of the machine at the tunnel. The car climbed the embankment and over turned on the highway.

Kirby, who gave pursuit, found Scheirer lying beside the wrecked automobile, but the other man had disappeared.

The machine, police say, belonged to Scheirer's brother, Stephen, also of Flemington.

Detective Clow and Sergeant Delate questioned the injured man at the hospital.

A man believed to be Marion was seen coming from the deep brush near the West Morrisville railroad yards at about 5 o'clock in the morning.
Charles A. Hevel, of Harrisburg, a Pennsylvania Railroad brakeman, told Morrisville State Police that when his train stopped, a young man suffering from head and face injuries and apparently very nervous came up to him and told him that his partner met with an accident following a hold-up. Then, the railroad said, he hurried back into the ticket.

Troopers Fisher and Brace, of Morrisville State Police, and Detectives Green and Brist, of Trenton police, went to the scene and made a thorough search, but were unable to find any trace of the man. Police believe that he boarded a freight train in the railroad yards.

Authorities say that Scheirer admits he and his companion held up the Atlantic gasoline station at 510 Brunswick avenue, and stole $10 from William L. Hammond, the attendant.

Flyers' Whereabouts Remain A Mystery

LONDON, Aug. 9.—(INS)—The two Canadian flyers, James Ayling and Leonard Reid, who hopped off north of Toronto yesterday in an attempt to better the long distance flight record by flying to Bagdad, had not been seen today up to 9 a. m. (4 a. m. New York time).

Every passenger ship and freighter and all radio equipped fishing boats and smaller craft had been instructed to be on the lookout for their plane,
"The Trail of the Caribou," but none reported seeing it.

The Air Ministry after making a special weather survey for international news service reported that the flyers would experience exceptionally favorable weather conditions when they came within 800 miles of the Irish coast.

The flyers, who have had practically no long distance flight experience, are seeking to better the record made last year by Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi when they flew from New York to Rayak, Syria, a distance of 5,657 miles. The distance from their starting point to Bagdad is approximately 6,300 miles.

The plane in which they are flying is not equipped with radio. It is the same plane which Jimmy Mollison and his wife, Amy, attempted to take off on a similar attempt to break the long distance record but they were unable to get the heavily-loaded affair off the sands of Masaga Beach on Georgian Bay.

BURLINGTON MAY ADOPT NEW GOVERNMENT

Will Hold Special Election On
The Subject On August 21st

PRESENT A PETITION

BURLINGTON, N. J., Aug. 9.—The council form of government which has been in existence here for the past 100 years may have substituted for it a commission form of government.

A special referendum is to be held August 21st at which time the citizens here will vote upon the question.

A petition favoring a change in the form of government was filed with the city clerk. It was signed by 1,100 signatures, exceeding the necessary 20 per cent. of the total voting population.

A special election for a referendum on the change must be called by the city clerk within 21 days. At that time the vote must be equal to 30 per cent. of the number of voters at the previous general election to take legal effect.

Filing of the petition was the culmination of three months' work by a body known as the executive board, composed of 50 citizens, many of them said to be the largest taxpayers and property holders of the city.

If the commission form of government is approved at the election, an election of candidates must follow within not more than three weeks.
With its population of 13,000 Barlington would be required to have five commissioners. The mayor would receive a salary of $1,500 and the other four commissioners $1,200 each. The present 12 councilmen serve without salary, and the mayor receives $800.

A movement in favor of establishing the commission form of government was launched here about 15 years ago, but it never got beyond the petition stage. Bordentown is the only other city in Burlington County which at present uses the commission form of government.

Backers of the change here maintain that Beverly and Denver are the only two cities in the United States which have adopted the City Commission and afterwards reverted to a council.

Thrilling Murder Mystery Drama Comes To Grand

"Return of the Terror," one of the most unique and baffling mystery dramas ever screened, comes to the Grand Theatre today.

The screen play by Eugene Solow and Peter Milne was suggested by the cleverest of all of the mystery dramas of the famous author Edgar Wallace.
The story concerns a series of crimes, the first of which is the killing of a number of patients at a private sanitarium for which the superintendent is convicted and confined to an insane asylum.

Three other slayings and two attempted murders follow upon the escape of the asylum inmate, all taking place on a single night of terror at the very sanitarium at which the patients had been slain.

The picture also carries a double romance, one the love affair of the feminine owner of the sanitarium and the accused superintendent, and the other that of a reporter and a nurse in the institution. In addition there is said to be considerable comedy, which comes in as a relief for the terrific tension caused by the harrowing situations.

There is an all star cast which is headed by Mary Astor, Lyle Talbot, John Halliday and Frank McHugh.
Other talented players include Robert Barrat, Irving Pichel, George E. Stone,
J. Carroll Naish, Frank Reicher, Robert Emmet O'Connor, Renee Whitney, Etienne Glatot, Maude Eburne, Charles Grapewin, George Cooper and Frank Conroy.

Erie on August 15th to 18th, to the American Legion State Convention, to defend their laurels as champions of the state.

The Cadet Corps, the Legion Auxiliary and the Legion itself are all working very hard in order to raise the necessary funds for the Cadets will lend its whole-hearted support to the affairs being arranged for this purpose.

Table assignments for the card party this evening will be at 8.15 o'clock. There will be many attractive prizes awarded.

Crashes Into Pole

INJURIES ARE SERIOUS

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Aug. 9.—Pinned in the wreckage of their automobile when it crashed into an iron pole and overturned on the outskirts of Pemberton, near here, a man and a woman were killed and two other men critically injured. Several hours after the accident the body of the woman lay in the Burlington County mortuary and was identified as Mrs.
Ida Tort, 26, Trenton.

Through cards in the pocket, police identified the male victim as Harry Downs, 39, of Trenton.

The injured are Joseph King, 35, of near Trenton, and John Winters, Morrisville. Both are in a serious condition from numerous injuries, in Burlington County Hospital at Mt. Holly.

ROOSEVELT IN WISCONSIN

By George R. Holmes
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

Green Bay, Wisconsin, Aug. 9.— President Roosevelt came into the turbulent and progressive state today with a message that the "new deal" is here to stay and that there will be no return to the "old deal."

Confidence, he said, is returning to every legitimate line of business; those who lack that confidence, he asserted, are those who profited unjustly under the old order of "old law by tooth and claw."

"This government intends no injury to honest business," he said.
"The processes we follow in seeking social justice do not, in adding to general prosperity, take from one and give to another. In the modern world the spreading out of opportunity ought not to consist of 'robbing Peter to pay Paul.' We are concerned with more than mere subtraction and addition; we are concerned with the multiplication of wealth through cooperative action; wealth in which all can share."

The President spoke to an audience of thousands gathered to commemorate Wisconsin's ter-centenary. He stated his red hot senatorial campaign in carefully avoided any reference to the which young "Bob" LaFollette is running as an independent, although he did speak his gratitude to "your two senators" for aiding the administration program.

ARREST 8 IN GERMANY

Berlin, Germany, Aug. 9.—Eight persons were arrested yesterday reportedly in a conspiracy to assassinate Victor Lutze, Nazi Storm troop commander, who succeeded Captain Ernst Roehm, executed by Adolf Hitler's order, but official silence was maintained concerning the arrests today.
Lutze was placed in command of the brown-shirted storm troopers the same day, July 1st, that Roehm was shot for plotting a rebellion against the Hitler government.

was revealed today. The plants, which will be closed for at least two weeks, are located in Loraine, McKeesport,

GOOD PITCHING AND -HITTING WINS GAME

Hibernians Triumph Over All-Stars and Win By the Score of 9 to 4

DEVLIN ON THE MOUND

Effective pitching and timely hitting gave the Hibernians of the Lower Bucks County League a 9-4 victory over the Bristol Twilight League All-Stars last night in a benefit game on Leedom's field. A large crowd was on hand to watch the pastime.

Roy Devlin did the mound chores for the winners and held the senior league players to three singles. Two of these were of the scratch variety while the other was the resounding triple to right field by Dougherty.
Manager Hibbs, of the Edely team, made the other bingles, one a long fly which DiTanna dropped after a long run and the other a hard bouncer down to Hemp who could not handle the pill.

Devlin was aided by swanky fielding on the part of his mates. Downing, the shortstop, handled seven out of 8 chances and several times broke up threatening rallies by the Twilight Leaguers.

beginning for the Dolanmen. He re-

CAMP BUCCOU IS ENTERING FIFTH WEEK OF SEASON

Change From A Mass Camp
Has Been Progressive
One

7 TROOPS ARE THERE

Interesting Program Has Been Enjoyed During The Summer

CAMP BUCCOU, Aug. 9.—Buccou Camp enters its fifth week with the greatest number of units, and campers, it has experienced under the unit camping system. The change from a mass camp has been a progressive step towards "Every scout a summer camper." The Bucks County Council only requires the payment of twenty-five cents per camper for the privilege of being at Buccou. The reservation fee is used for program, sanitary, and equipment expenses. Each unit, then, makes an additional charge for the bare food costs; this has made possible hundreds of the scouts going to camp, and profiting by the week of recreational training at the county scout camp.

Seven troops, and eighty-nine campers, are in camp this week: Waterfront (Bristol No. 2, Scoutmaster Robert Downing), Lookout (Bristol No. 1, Scoutmaster Scoutmaster Herbert Pettit, Jr.), Mountain View (Richboro, Assistant Scoutmaster Horace Luff), Chief's Den (South Langhorne, Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Harry McGrath), Stockade (Doylestown No. 1, Scoutmaster Clarence Hawk, and Assistant Scoutmaster Edward Tomlinson), Forest View (Perkasie No. 2, Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Clay
Stover), and Crafts Lodge (Cornwells, Assistant Scoutmaster Benjamin Hughes). Several scouts from Chalfont and Yardley are staying for another week.

Vice President C. Wilson Roberts, Southampton, chairman of the West Bucks District of the Bucks County Council, spoke on the topic of "On My Honor," as a part of the Sunday Chapel service. Being on one's honor is a part of every statement made by an individual was the thought of Mr.
Roberts. When we say something it is taken in good faith that we mean it, and that our facts are true. Vice President Roberts concluded his remarks by several stories from his experiences, while traveling, and gave the thoughtful closing of "Scouts—guard your honor; it is something that is yours, and yours alone. When it is once lost, you are going to find it most difficult to regain the confidence of your brother scouts." Robert C. Belleville, III, formerly of Yardley, delighted the campers by singing "The Lord is My Shepherd," an arrangement of Beardsley VandeWater, and "The Prayer Perfect" by James Wycombe Riley. John Bone of Newtown led in the singing of the hymns, Scripture was read by Scoutmaster O. Kenneth Fretz of Quakertown, and the prayer was beautifully given by Scoutmaster William L. Schofield of Morrisville.

Scouts of Riegelsville, led by Assistant Scoutmaster William Adams, carved with axes and axes, the trail leading to the Robin Hood Glen. The Glen will be the scene of the 1934 Buccou Camps' Show on Wednesday evening, August 8th. The boys worked many hours to grade the trail, arranging the marking stones and cutting the trees and underbrush to give the effect of a natural canopy. It is an excellent demonstration of scout woodcraft, and conservation.

Best appearing, personal inspection, and marching troop at Buccou Camps for the fourth week of the eighth season was Morrisville No. 1, Scoutmaster William L. Schofield. During the formal inspections, and dress parades on Monday and Saturday, the troop was outstanding. The earlier part of the week they were in charge of Mate Jack Burgess, and the latter part of the week under Mate Robert White; both officers of the Seascout Ship Robert Morris of Morrisville.

Scoutmaster Raymond Locke of Chalfont had the honor conferred on him of being the Buccou Camp Commissioner for the fourth week. The Commissioner for the last week of camp will be Assistant Scoutmaster Benjamin Hughes of Cornwells. The Commissioner directs the colors, dress parade, and personal inspection.
In addition, he is the leader of the site leaders. Commissioner Hughes has a difficult responsibility as leader with the camp filled beyond its present housing capacity.

The Ceremonial Trail has been nearly completed by the members of the Camp Honor Brotherhood, Wimachtendienck, guided by Sakima Edward Baumert of South Langhorne.
Two trails have been developed; one leading the visitors to the Ceremonial, and the other known as "The Scout's Own," taking the scouts through two flare stations with Scouting ceremonies at each of them. With the campers there was a large group of visitors Saturday evening to pay homage to the Honor Scouts. Deputy Commissioner David Neill, of Bristol,

QUITTING HAITI

Less than 800 American marines are now in Haiti, and the last of these is scheduled to be withdrawn before the end of August.

Return home of the final contingent will result from the new understanding reached between the American and the Haitian governments. The dispatch of marines to the island several years ago was caused by chaotic conditions resulting from the breakdown of the Haitian government and a consequent threat to the lives and safety of Americans and other foreigners. At one time, 2,000 were there.

The conditions that caused the occupation have been corrected. A capable government has been established, at least temporarily, and the outlook is that orderly rule may be permanent.

This being the case, the United States has completed its work. The only thing for it to do is to withdraw and let the Haitians see if they are capable of running their own affairs. The policy is in keeping with that which has marked American intervention in other countries where it has been necessary to dispatch marines. Repeatedly has the United States shown it had no designs upon its neighbors, despite charges to the contrary.

Intervention in foreign countries is something Americans don't relish. This has become necessary at times, though. Always, however, Washington authorities have shown a desire to get out as soon as it was possible to do this with safety to American interests.

ECONOMY AND SPEED

A new incentive to less speed and more safety in automobile driving is offered by Clarence P. Taylor of the Massachusetts motor vehicle department.

Pleas emphasizing the dangers of fast driving, supported by mounting fatality figures, have failed to bring the desired result.

But maybe Mr. Taylor has found the secret.

It is much more expensive to the autoist, says the Massachusetts man, to drive fast than at a moderate rate of speed. He supports his claims with figures, indicating he has given some real study to the question he discusses.

An automobile can be most economically operated, he explains, at speeds up to 30 miles an hour. Beyond that, the cost per mile in gasoline and in wear and tear, rapidly increases. Twice as much gas will be used, for instance, in traveling at 75 miles an hour as at 20 miles.

The average motorist is economically-minded. If he can be persuaded that moderate speed means less demand on his pocketbook, it may be that he will not be so quick to step on the gas.

Real cause of war: An excited statesman said too much and was too proud to back down.

The machine has another advantage. It isn't scrapped if it won't neck with the foreman.

The well dressed German probably has added bullet-proof vests to his wardrobe.

Now is a good time for those Dutch scientists who claim to have produced a new low temperature give us a demonstration.

A wedding of interest to the young people of Yardley took place on Monday.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER I

WHEN Caroline was growing up her lovely mother used to say to her with an air of delicate reproach: "You sprawl so, dear."

"But Mummy, it's a sprawling house," Caroline had once answered. A few years later she knew that she had meant it was a gracious house.

Colonial and old. Built by the founder of the family fortune, of the town's chief industry, and the co-educational university. Other charming suburban residences had been erected on the broad acres that composed the original Rutledge homestead, but none were so authentic, so hospitable or so popular. In the early days of the town's history the house had been the gathering place of the serious-minded, the leaders in church and politics, the elite of the aristocracy.

Today the college crowd—Caroline's friends—owned it. Her father, Philip Rutledge, paid the taxes and the bills, but it was open house to flocks of light-hearted revelers who, according to the servants' way in and out at all hours of the day and night.

Caroline loved it, the house, the gaiety, her leadership. It seemed all hers. An only child, she had never brought to her glamorous mother a definite sense of maternal responsibility. Mrs. Rutledge had for years spent most of her time abroad. Mr. Rutledge and Caroline preferred to stay at home. Mr. Rutledge practically lived at his club.

The depression washed up like a tidal wave and destroyed the security of many homes in the neighborhood. Hawthorn House stood like a bulwark, but Caroline's followers diminished somewhat in numbers as the semesters ended and the calls to come home came in to some of the students from distant parts. A few among the local residents were lost to her, but those who remained in her "set" felt safe, realized little of what was going on in the world.

No great sums were needed by them for their good times; apparently their parents were carrying on as usual and at Hawthorn House everything was as it always had been. Good cheer in plenty.

The entertaining in other homes gradually fell off; the hospitality at Hawthorn House increased. Mr. Rutledge never faced the issue of mounting expenses, telling himself it went at that—just as he avoided facing the issue of his fatherly spending his time in his club.

In April Mrs. Rutledge returned from abroad. The boat trip had been a bore; people talked incessantly of the bad times. Alva Rutledge suspected that most of them were coming back because of lack of funds to continue away from home. For the first time in her inconsequential life she thought of money, glad that the family fortune was well rooted in an established industry. People would always want soap and cosmetics, she assured herself.

Mr. Rutledge did not meet her in New York. Undoubtedly he was too busy at the factory, she thought.

It was good to be at home. She enjoyed having Caroline's gay friends in the house after that dreary boat. Caroline was delighted with her mother. Surely no other mother had ever been so alluringly beautiful.

"You're about the only old lady my friends would stand for, darling," she told Alva soberly.

Alva Rutledge shuddered, protested the description.

you to look your loveliest this afternoon. There'll be hundreds of people."

"Good gracious. How do you feed them?"

"Well, then, dozens. And it's a cocktail party. Nothing to eat but canapés. You brought some new recipes for Anna, didn't you?"

"Nothing new. Tell her to wrap stuffed olives with bacon and grill them."

Caroline said: "They're crazy about them," and started to leave the room. Her mother called to her. "What are you wearing?" she asked.

"Black."

Alva shook her head. "Because you have auburn hair like mine?"

Caroline looked at her mother's waves of burnished gold. "Have I really hair like that?" she asked.

"Exactly. And it's not the shade dominate in her child the charm that was hers. This charm had come to her from her own father, a Southern gentleman as irrepro-ssibly a devotee to love of life as Grandfather Rutledge had been a rock-ribbed realist.

She thought of her sister Fern, so like their colorless mother. Poor

Fern. Well, at least Caroline was beautiful and sweet. Possibly a girl who was only touched with Rutledge realism could feel joy at least to the extent of making life worth living. It had hardly been so for Grandfather Rutledge. With him it was a grim-mouthed endurance test. She hoped Caroline would never get to be like that, and turned her thoughts to consideration of a dance she must give for Caroline soon—a dance with talent from New York—something to remind the town that she was again in residence at Hawthorn House. And incidentally, to announce the girl's engagement.

Caroline's party that afternoon was handled entirely by Caroline.

Her mother took no part in it until she came down to join the guests, refreshed, sparklingly animated and simply shimmering in beauty and cool green silk.

Everything was lovely. "The child really is capable," Alva thought, and wished she felt happier about it.

It was a cool spring day. Backlogs held the fires in the fireplaces.

Daffodils were all about. Carpets were rolled up and out of the way.

The big chairs were new English chintz—she had sent it over herself, a color to match the gowns she wore. A pretty maid who looked as though she would like to share in the dancing passed plates of hot olives and salted almonds, but the guests themselves served the cocktails.

No shadow of depression here.

Music, laughter, soft lights.

The tinkle of ice, couples lost in rhythmic abandon, young men bringing in tall silver shakers with which they described fanciful arcs in the air with an energy that seemed tireless.

Later there was a bit of clowning, an extemporized adagio dance, an imitation of Beatrice Lillo, laughter a little louder, and one girl that sulked because she said

Caroline had no right to be engaged to Howard Dunsforth. Everyone conducted with her in an amusing fashion, but Alva wondered. Howard was not finding it funny. He didn't like it. His uneasiness brought Alva at last to studying the girl. She saw, or thought she saw, a real feeling behind the confessed pique.

No shadow of depression here.

Music, laughter, soft lights.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Karin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, minowater, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up, you get stomachachy. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up."

They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's 4 Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's 4 Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

spoke on "You Are a Boy Scout."

Franklin Boehret, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Boehret, of Chalfont, was the Outstanding Scout. Other Honor Scouts were Robert Anderson of Morrisville No. 1, Donald Clemens and Joseph Harvey of Yardley, George Saunders, John Adams and Richard Adams of Riegelsville, William McMullen and Arthur Starbuck of Newtown, George Carlin and Joseph Clark of Chalfont, and Earl Klein of Quakertown No. 2.

Sunday evening everybody assembled in Good Times Hall for a "get-together." Scout Executive William F. Livermore introduced the different members of the staff, and each of them led the group in one of the Buccou songs. Superintendent of Property William Carlin, of Chalfont, gave a talk on the purpose of Wilmachtendieck, the Boy Scout Honor Brotherhood. Scout Carlin told the campers they were to have the privilege of deciding who were the most worthy campers in their group on Friday evening. In the meantime, everyone should decide which scouts were showing the greatest sacrifice for their group, and at all times indicating a willing spirit of helpfulness, and consideration for others.

Scout Executive William F. Livermore gave a lecture on Monday morning as a part of the educational training given to the scouts. The scout executive spoke of what it means to be a good camper, and developing the ability of self-reliance to take care of one's self. He took the word camper, and spoke of it in terms of C—comfort, A—adventure, M—manly, P—persistent, E—energetic, and R—reliable. In emphasizing the thought of manly, Mr. Livermore urged the scouts to consult with their fathers when they are confronted with the problems of life; secondly, the leader of their faith whether he is a pastor, priest or rabbi, their family doctor; and last of all, they could depend on their scout leader.

Every camper was given a swim test of fifty yards on Monday morning by Scoutmaster Robert Downing of Bristol No. 2, who is serving as Waterfront and Swim Director for the fifth week. Scoutmaster Downing is being assisted by Assistant Scoutmaster Horace Luff (Richboro), Assistant Scoutmaster Benjamin Hughes (Cornwells), and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Howard Boehret (Chalfont). In addition to the swim test every swimmer must have a "buddy;" the buddy system of swimming was developed by the Boy Scouts of America many years ago as a safety precaution for swimmers. All of the non-swimmers are being given daily instructions at 11:15, and at 4:15, by Senior Patrol Leader William Hagar of Langhorne.

The Monday afternoon activity of a Treasure Hunt under Assistant Scoutmaster Edward Tomlinson proved an exciting affair. A color card trail had been laid through the woods by Scouts Walter Miller (Point Pleasant) and Howard Boehret (Chalfont). High point winner was Harry McGrath, a scout of South Langhorne.

Dress Parade on Monday evening was a "clean-up" for Bristol No. 1, in charge of Herbert Pettit, Jr. The lower county troop took first place in both marching and personal inspection. The personal inspection is very rigid involving a careful checking on all parts of the camper's apparel and body. Scout Executive Livermore supervised the inspection assisted by the season staff of William Carlin (Chalfont), William Hagar and William Palmer (Langhorne), and Richard Heyder (Perkasie). Second place in marching went to Bristol No. 2, and third place was taken by Cornwells. In personal inspection, second place was a victory for Perkasie No. 2 with South Langhorne taking third place. Scout Executive Livermore complimented the camp on their "snap," and favorable personal condition. The campers are doing their utmost to live up to their Scout Law of Clean, one of the twelve that guide the scout and scout leader in his conduct.

Mrs. Katharine Peters and daughter, Regina, Bath street, and the Misses Boyle, Buckley street, spent Thursday in Wildwood.

Europe Spends Heavily in Building Air Forces

Europe has turned to the air with feverish interest and each nation is pouring out millions to build up powerful military aviation fleets. Since the rise to power of General Hermann Goering, Germany's minister of air, the Nazi regime has quadrupled its expenditures for "civil" aircraft, and many schools for flying have been established. England has appropriated almost $100,000,000 to double its airplane squadrons, and acting Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin states the new boundary of England, because of the air, is now the Rhine river. France, Italy, Russia and the smaller countries also possess powerful aviation corps, and each is planning even stronger forces in the air to keep its defensive power on a par with neighboring nations.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

SYNOPSIS

The depression did not alter life at "Hawthorn," the comfortable, hospitable home of the Philip Rutledges. Caroline, their lovely daughter, entertained lavishly and the younger set swarmed there. Mrs. Rutledge spends most of her time abroad and her husband practically lives at the club. Following her mother's return from one of her trips, Caroline gives a party. The pampered Alva notes how capably her daughter has arranged everything and wishes she could feel happier about it. During the evening, one of the girls sulks because she feels Caroline has no right to be engaged to Howard Dunsworth.

CHAPTER II

Alva Rutledge disliked Howard Dunsworth, agreed with her husband that it was awkward for their daughter to be engaged to the son of Henry Dunsworth. The Dunsworths and the Rutledges had been enemies for so long it was almost a classic feud. Caroline and Howard had broken it up. The Rutledges were too modern to interfere, but the Dunsworths would have none of it. It had happened while Alva was abroad and was the reason why she shortened her trip and returned home. Caroline must have a brilliant announcement party. Althea Dunsworth would hate it! Howard was the apple of her eye. Watching him now Alva told herself she wouldn't be surprised if there were a worm at the core. She had told Caroline she didn't like him, thought he was unsound. Caroline had listened with the Rutledge expression until Alva decided it was useless to disapprove further. Her father's opposition the girl passed off as based upon his own bitter feeling toward Howard's father.

"All because Mr. Dunsworth brought that other soap factory to town!"

"He bought the site from your father, who controlled it for his own protection, when he learned the other people wanted it. And he told your father it was to be a leather factory."

"Father got his price, the factory would have been started somewhere and I don't think it's being a good loser to get some when the other person outsmarts you."

"It's given your father a great deal of competition locally and in the nearby counties," Alva said stiffly.

"Mother, you don't know a thing about it," Caroline had laughed then. "And after all it has nothing to do with Howard and me."

That had been the end of her parents' outspoken disapproval. Alva was certain that Caroline would be happy with Howard for a while. Afterward—if Caroline became managerial he would resent it. There'd be fireworks. Howard should marry a girl who would weep in silence, or not care, or trick and charm him to faithfulness. Caroline, if she developed along the decisive lines she was showing in her character would cut too clean for Howard when the trouble came. And trouble must, with Howard. Alva was certain of that, weighing this girl who obviously shared some secret with him.

Caroline, Alva observed, was taking it in the modern American girl's way—a proud way, the way that requires a gallantry that Alva, having lived so much abroad, was not quite certain was genuine. At heart women were primitive, coquetry was their natural weapon. She hated to see her daughter disdain it for the masculine attitude; an almost painful goodfellowship, she considered it. That was the trouble, she thought, with Alva—fine, but indifferent to her natural heritage of charm. Let a man go if he liked was her way, and Alva believed it was not the way of wiser women. Women should protect their men. If that were not so why then were they the moral mentors of the world? Caroline would proudly let the first woman who wanted Howard have free rein. Well, Alva shrugged,—if Howard were a man worth keeping it would be really a pity; as it was, Caroline would suffer and come to see at last that her mistake was not fatal to her happiness, Howard being Howard.

Howard came up and asked her to dance. Alva felt it as a challenge. She rose. A voice from the door to the hall drew her attention. Philip! Whatever in the world was the matter with him!

She heard Caroline say: "Father!" and saw her go swiftly to his side.

Philip Rutledge presented a startling appearance as he stood before his family and the roomful of guests that afternoon. The clear brown eyes held a haunted, frantic expression. The thick gray hair that ordinarily added to his distinguished appearance was disordered. His face was pallid, his lips working nervously as he sought to speak calmly. Tall, straight and proud he had been.

It stabbed Caroline with a painful shock to see that he slumped, that he seemed to have shrunk under some crushing weight.

"Darling, what is it?" she appealed to him.

Philip put an arm weakly about her shoulders. His eyes went past her to those of her friends, who stood staring at him in unbecoming surprise. Most of them were dancing merrily on, unaware that trouble had stalked into their midst.

"Send them away," he said hoarsely. "Get them out of here!"

Caroline went a bit white, but she turned and said to the group that was now pressing forward: "I'm sorry, something's gone wrong with father. Please tell the others."

She slipped an arm about her father's waist. "Come upstairs," she said gently.

"Let me. It was Alva, beside her. 'See your guests off, Caroline,' the mother added.

Philip stiffened. His glance had fallen upon Howard Dunsworth.

"Keep Howard here," he said sharply to his daughter. "When the others are gone bring him to the library."

In the hall Alva urged him to go to his room but he insisted upon making his way to the library. There he dropped wearily into a chair and asked for a drink. Alva rang and ordered the wide-eyed maid who answered to bring ice. With a frozen-nerved efficiency she mixed brandy and soda.

A few minutes later Caroline came in with Howard. "Are you all right now father?" she asked anxiously.

"Sit down." Her father waved toward a chair. "Don't stand, Howard."

"But I really think . . . is there anything I can do?" Howard was obviously thinking he had no part in this family meeting.

Philip looked straight at him as he seated himself on the arm of a chair. "Can't guess what it's all about, can you?" the older man asked bitingly. "Didn't know a thing about it?"

Howard looked annoyed. "You're quite right, I can't," he agreed.

"No, I suppose not," Philip acquiesced. "Henry Dunsworth would hardly be likely to share his business confidences with you."

"Father!" It was now Caroline who protested the biting sarcasm in his tones.

"Well, let it pass," her father said. "I've a surprise for you Howard. I'm no longer withholding my blessing from your proposed union with my daughter. I give it to you now in the fullest degree."

Such a statement at an earlier date would have added immeasurably to Caroline's happiness; now she felt only more deeply troubled by it.

"That's very kind of you," Howard murmured unenthusiastically. Philip Rutledge smiled bitterly.

"I still disapprove of you," he said frankly, "make no mistake about that." He turned to Caroline. "I've a surprise for you too," he said, "and Alva. A rotten surprise. I'm sorry about it."

"Philip!" It was a cry of distress from his wife. He transferred his haunted gaze to her face. "Yes, it will be rotten for you," he said, almost as though he spoke to himself. "But Caroline's different. She's young and a little hard and she's a Rutledge. Perhaps we haven't been exactly the wisest parents in the world, Alva, but she has character in spite of us. I hate to give her to a Dunsworth, but she wants him and it's the only way she'll ever get her rightful inheritance."

"Father, what are you talking about?"

Howard had risen. "Delightful conference," he began acidly but Caroline cut him short. "Wait," she said imperiously. Then, to her father: "Please explain it all to us," she begged. "It's rather awful not to know."

"Yes," he said, "no doubt. It's very simple, child. Henry Dunsworth has ruined me. The bank sold him my notes. I don't know where he got the money, but he came down on me without mercy. But for him I'd have got through." He looked up at Howard. "Sharp man, your father," he said dispassionately.

Alva, stricken to silence, sank unnoticed into a convenient chair. Howard showed by his expression that he was genuinely unprepared for this news. Caroline, suppressing a cry of remonstrance, stood rigid, waiting. Howard broke the silence.

Philip smiled wanly. "I've never quite understood, Howard," he said slowly, "how you've dared to defy your father by keeping to your engagement with Caroline. It's the one thing about you that has kept me from threatening to behead her if she married you."

Howard stirred uneasily, remained silent.

"Take him out and talk to him," Philip said to Caroline. "You've a lot to settle, you two. Henry's next move will be to break you up—that's certainly plain enough."

"Philip, dear," Alva was beside him, a hand on his brow. Caroline wavered, saw that she could not keep Howard longer in her father's presence, and with a breathless: "Let's get outside," rushed out of the room.

In the hall Howard said: "Why not talk in the living room? I can't stay long, Caro."

Caroline paused, vaguely distressed at something in his voice, at his attitude. "All right," she said simply and led the way to a long sofa before the fire.

Howard sat rather stiffly beside her. She reached out a hand and found his fingers limp, unresponsive. She misunderstood.

"Of course, it can't make any difference to us," she said encouragingly. "I mean—that it was your father who did it."

"No," Howard agreed, "that doesn't matter. They were enemies before we were born." His voice lacked warmth, and Caroline was conscious of a subtle withdrawal, a break in their understanding of each other. And Howard had not offered a word of sympathy. Perhaps he was hurt that his father had done this to them—moved too deeply for words.

"I can't quite comprehend it," she said. "It seems unreal, although I suppose it's an old story to millions of people. It's just that I never thought of it's happening to us—to father."

"Don't you think you're too upset to talk about it?" Howard inquired hopefully.

"No," she said definitely. "I'm calm, really. I want to talk about it. I couldn't do anything else, and I wouldn't like to bother father with questions just now."

BABES in the WOODS

WE NEVER grow so old that we do not recall our childhood concern as we thought of what might have happened to the two story-book children who wandered aimlessly into the forest and became lost.

We never grow so wise that we can walk blindly into the marts of trade and straightway find the shoes, car, ham, cleaner, rug, antiseptic or what-not that best fits our individual need, fancy or pocketbook.

Without a dependable buying guide we are all Babes in the Woods . . . lost when it comes to judging qualities, values or styles. "Know the reputation of the store," is one rule. "Know the reputation of the product and its manufacturer," is another. The two together make wise selection doubly certain.

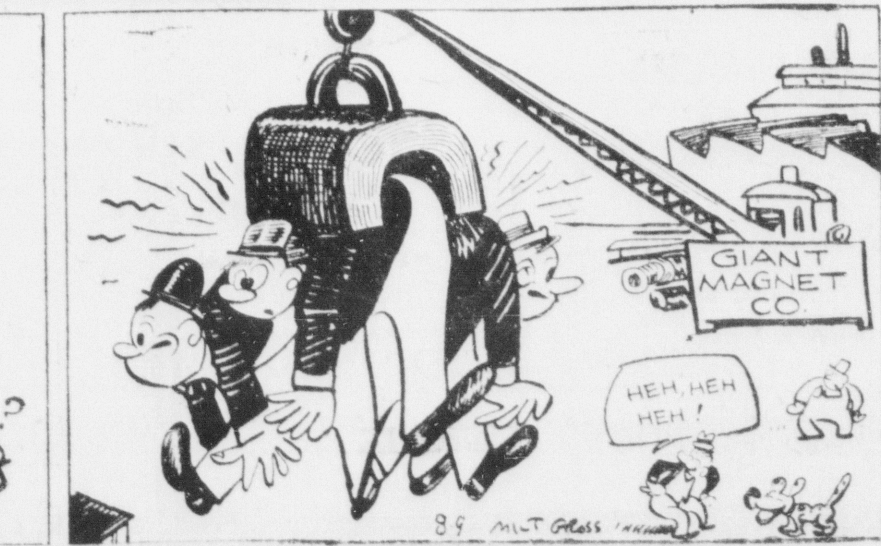

You can form a very reliable estimate of the stores which advertise consistently. So also of manufacturers

Only sound merchandise, attractively priced, can continue to repay the retailer or the manufacturer for his advertising outlay. If he can risk the money it costs him to tell you about his goods, you can be reasonably sure that your path through the woods will lead to the best values for your buying dollars.

The advertising pages are the pathway to Highest Quality and Lowest Prices.

SHORT CUTS TO THE DINNER TABLE

By Vera A. Schneider
Fish — And a Delicious Method For Preparing It

Today, being the day on which we usually plan a fish dinner, my thoughts turn to the fish markets with their array of fresh fish, and the market man with his long white coat and straw hat, whether it be winter or summer, and then my thoughts revert to the fisherman who actually catches the fish.

Of course, there are those who make this catching of fish their business, but when we catch fish for the sport and a diversion, then there is real joy in it. What a thrill to get up at sunrise, way off somewhere on a lake, where even summer visitors are rare, get into a boat and be off to a spot where you just know the bass are going to bite, or still another where pickerei are known to be plentiful.

Summer's a wonderful season, isn't it, especially when vacation time comes and we can follow the pleasure of our various pursuits. I dare say many of us are planning right now to be off on our annual holiday, and whether we enjoy being off into the woods where dressing up is taboo and fishing consumes the most of our time; or whether we prefer to be dressed in dainty, fluffy summer dresses, dancing to our heart's desire with the cooling ocean breezes blowing in and around the dance floor, I hope that each and every one of us shall enjoy the respite from our daily labors, and come back to the usual routine much refreshed and with a new outlook on trivial little things that were beginning to irk us.

I'm beginning to gather a lot of enthusiasm about the Northern hills and lakes where fish is served within an hour after its catching, and what morsels of deliciousness!

The way I prepare these fish, if they are large enough for baking, is to wash them thoroughly, of course, then sprinkle them generously with salt and pepper and sprinkle lemon juice both over the inside and the outside. Then cover the bottom of the pan with thin strips of bacon, place the fish on it, and cover the top of the fish with thinly sliced onion, and over the fish I again place thin strips of bacon. Then I bake the fish until it is tender.

And I assure you, friend home-makers, once you bake fish in this way, even though you are not favorably inclined toward fish, you will thoroughly enjoy it.

Suppose now, we turn our attention to week-end menus.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

JEFFERSON A. C. RALLIES AND DEFEATS NO-NAMES

Jefferson A. C. came from behind to defeat the Harriman NoNames on the high school diamond with late rallies to win 9-5. The "Mules" got off to a one run lead in their first on double by Gibson and an error by Chickaletti, only to have the No Names score 3 in their turn on an error, two walks, a double and single. They increased their lead to 5-1 by scoring two in the second on a triple by Moore and Foell and Chickaletti's hit. The "Mules" kept pecking away at Foell and tied the score in the sixth by counting pairs in the fourth and sixth. In the fourth an error and Profy's single counted 2 runs. They knotted the score in the sixth. Gibson walked; Spencer tripled to left, scoring Gibson and scored on Mulligan's hit to short. They won the game in the seventh by counting 4 times. Orazi singled off Orr's glove and was out stealing. P. Tomlinson walked and took third on R. Tomlinson's single to right. Peltz grounded out, scoring P. Tomlinson. R. HITLER RELEASES CAMP PRISONERS

Berlin, Germany, Aug. 9.—Between eight and ten thousand persons in concentration camps throughout Germany will be granted liberty by a sweeping amnesty decree announced today by Reichsleiter Hitler. The step was taken, Hitler announced, in memory of the late President Von Hindenburg. Many of those who will be released have been in concentration camps since the Nazi drive against political foes was launched months ago. The Amnesty decree was issued in the form of a law liberating almost all groups "in memory of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg."

SPORT SHOTS by Maxwell Gordon

MANAGER Frank Craven's Knights of Columbus aquatic team certainly climaxed a successful training session when they captured the coveted James P. Farrell trophy emblematic of the club championship... at the K. of C. Southeast District contests held last week in the Crystal Pool at Woodside Park, Philadelphia.

This group of sturdy young men completely stole the show... winning 9 firsts, 10 seconds and 4 third places for the amazing total of 46 points... the highest number of points ever made by any team in the history of the meet... The St. Leo Council of Tacony, always a strong rival of the local lads, were second, with only 15 points.

The Bristol team made such an impression on the spectators who witnessed the meet that they were hailed as the finest team of swimmers ever assembled out of one club, and the best ever to represent the district which has twenty-five councils in it.

These eleven chaps, all Bristolians, certainly showed the value of having their home on the banks of the Delaware and the advantage of a coach of the caliber of John Barrett, who himself won the breast stroke championship and the 50 yard free style title... His brother Walter also captured the 100 yard free style championship... while Joe Ward defeated all competitors in the 50 yard back stroke.

The other members of this great team were: Jack Gavegan, Bill and Joe Murphy, Ed. Lawler, Pete Kowal, George Hoffman, Vincent McGee and Bill Goslin... We hail the champions!

the first and two in the second. However, only two of the runs were earned. Turner Ashley relieved Roper and finished in fine style except in the fifth when four runs came off his delivery.

"Eddie" Roe, who acts as an arbiter in the Bristol Twilight League, played against the All-Stars and helped to cause their downfall with two doubles. He reached base in the second on an error and scored the entire three times. Ennis also had two safe blows.

HITLER TO BROADCAST

Berlin, Germany, Aug. 9.—Adolph Hitler will make a radio address to the German people explaining his act in making himself their absolute ruler on Friday, August 17th, it was announced today. Hitler's radio speech will culminate his campaign for overwhelming approval by the citizens of Germany of his continuing the offices of President and Chancellor, thus giving himself more power than any ruler in modern history. It will be broadcast two days before the Plebiscite, on his action, scheduled for Sunday, August 19th. As during his Reichstag speech of July 13th, explaining the killing throughout the Reich, the populace will be given every opportunity to hear Hitler's address. Again giant loudspeakers will be erected in the public squares. Every major radio station in Germany will broadcast it and the German public will be ordered to tune in.

WORK CUT OUT FOR VON PAPPEN

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 9.—Franz Von Pappen, Hitler envoy entrusted with the task of making peace with the Austrian government, after the murder of Chancellor Dollfuss, will find his work cut out for him when he arrives here next week, it was indicated by editorials and reports of speeches in today's press, said the newspaper "Stunde."

"Colonel Von Pappen, when he is received in Vienna, will find himself obliged to walk through a double rank; on one side will stand doubt and on the other side suspicions. It will depend on him whether these doubts and suspicions can be dispersed. Let him not make the mistake of trying to acquire influence in Vienna; where his influence is necessary, and must be shown, is in Berlin."

ABOVE the stars! That's what they said of "King Carl" Hubbell, generally acknowledged kingpin of modern hurlers, after his really magnificent performance during the all-star game at New York last month. Hubbell, as all you baseball fans will recall, pitched the first three innings of that memorable contest, and literally stood the greatest batters in baseball on their highly esteemed heads. The Giants' master of the screwball handed the American League All-Stars a trio of horse-collars and, at one point, performed the astounding feat of fanning Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx and Cronin in succession. The American Leaguers haven't hit the screwball yet! This peculiar delivery, said to be a left-handed version of Matty's old fadeaway, is almost impossible to solve if you are batting against it for the first time. There are no screwball throwers in the Harbridge league, and as a consequence the American League swat-smiths were completely at a loss when the Giants' gaunt-faced south-
